"Show me the coin that pays the census tax." Then they handed him the Roman coin. He said to them, "Whose image is this and whose inscription?" They replied, "Caesar's." At that he said to them, "Then repay to Caesar what belongs to Caesar and to God what belongs to God."

FROM THE PASTOR'S DESK

There is a line from the book of Job when, after having suffering so much anguish and trying to figure out just what the heck he is supposed to make of it all, Job summarizes the totality of his life – the good and the bad – with this line, “The Lord gives and the Lord takes away. Blessed be the name of the Lord.”

I don't mean to compare myself AT ALL to Job's situation, but the line occurred to me on Friday last week when I received a call from the Director of the Priest's Placement Board to inquire if I was willing to let Fr. Aloy leave early to become a pastor on November 1st? And rest assured, they had another priest who would come and be here until July 1st of next year. The Church operates much like any large institution, which is to say, when they “ask” you such a question, it actually is more of an information-sharing conversation.

But that's the sum of it! Fr. Aloy will be leaving us by the end of October to become pastor of St. Hilary Parish. And Fr. Jose Battista of the Missionaries of St. Francis Xavier will be moving in November 1st to be with us until July 1st. Next weekend will be Fr. Aloy's last weekend here, since he was already scheduled to be away for a wedding the first weekend in November. Fr. Aloy was an easy person to have in the rectory these 4 months and was always willing to do whatever he could. I think I mentioned earlier that we knew he would only be here for one year. I wish him well at his new assignment. I think St. Hilary is lucky to get him.

Please be sure to introduce yourself to Fr. Jose once he is here in November. A main reason for him coming is to have another experience in parish life as his community prepares to assume responsibilities for a parish in Chicago next year.

Next weekend I am speaking at all the masses to follow up on the Annual Financial Report, and to ask every parishioner to consider their weekly Offertory contribution. Also, if you are not already doing so, would you consider making your parish contributions through the GiveCentral electronic donation system? I'll be talking more about it in my presentation next weekend. And Fran Klus, our Parish Business Manager, will be at the back of church after all the masses to assist anyone who would like to register with GiveCentral, or to answer any questions about the electronic giving program.

This weekend we are fortunate to have flu shots available in church on Sunday from 7:45 until 12:00 Noon. This is in partnership with Respiratory Health Association. Cost is just $20 – payable by cash or check made out to RHA.

On Sunday, November 2nd at the 12:00 Noon mass we will have our annual Memorial celebration, remembering all those who have died in the past year. Families of those who have been buried from St. Josaphat are invited to join in this special remembrance. If you have lost a family member or friend during this past year, I encourage you to join in this special celebration.

Each year we offer the Anointing of the Sick at all the weekend masses. This year we will be celebrating that Sacrament of Healing the weekend of November 8-9, the same weekend we celebrate our Patronal Feast Day (St. Josaphat's actual Feast Day is November 12.). If you know anyone who would benefit from being anointed, please encourage them to come to church that weekend.

PARISH MISSION STATEMENT:

St. Josaphat Catholic Parish, with faith in a loving God, joyfully welcomes all who wish to come together as a community of shared faith in Jesus Christ, to give glory and praise to God.

We commit to making Christ's love apparent on our journey of faith by striving to support, comfort, forgive, challenge and inspire each other in our homes, schools, neighborhoods, community and world.

We are energized through the celebration of the sacraments and the proclamation of the Gospel. Through our ongoing formation and education, outreach to those in need and hospitality to all, we come to know Christ and make Christ known.

SCRIPTURE REFLECTION

This was not a trick question with which the Pharisees and Herodians were confronting Jesus. Nor was it a frivolous one with little consequence. It cannot be equated with the tax debate which takes place in our society every election cycle. It was the issue of the time. Jews who favored cooperation with Rome, those who considered it best to work with the Romans and get on with life, like the Herodians, were in favor of the tax. Israel was an occupied nation: best to cooperate and adopt the laws and customs of the Roman Empire.

The Pharisees on the other hand were strict followers of the Mosaic Law. It was forbidden for devout Jews to owe allegiance to any King but a King of Israel, who sat in the place of God. The Roman coin held up to Jesus in this story would have had an image of Caesar engraved on it and it would have also contained the phrase "son of God" referring to the image. No Jew was allowed to carry such a coin in his hands or on his person. Most likely Jesus never had such a Roman coin.

This was serious business. A bloody revolt by the Jews over this issue was suppressed by the Romans at the time of Jesus' birth. The fall of Jerusalem in 70 AD was in part due to this controversy.

But Jesus was not just trying to avoid picking sides. He was not avoiding the political issue. He was delivering the message that he was not going to participate in religiousizing every issue. The heart of Judaism for Jesus could not be defined by taking a position against the census tax. The heart of Judaism was much greater.

We see this in Pope Francis today. Like Jesus he does not deny that certain issues have a religious component. He does not deny that political issues need to be examined from a gospel view. He objects, however, to making positions on sensitive political and social issues the litmus test for being a good Christian – a good Catholic. He is concerned that we remain focused on the heart of Jesus' message.

As this census tax issue tore apart the Jewish community during the first century, so today issues like abortion, contraception, and gay marriage have torn apart the Catholic community. It is today, as it was for the followers of Jesus in the first century, most important to work toward the building of the Kingdom of God. Resisting evil is necessary, but it is not the heart of building the Kingdom.

Year of Sacraments • One Word at a Time

Wait

As we pray for the sick, even as we celebrate the sacrament of the Anointing of the Sick, we keep watch with them. We wait with them. Our waiting, however, is not just watching time pass by. Our waiting is full of expectation. Even—and perhaps especially—when the outcome of an illness is uncertain, we hold on to hope. We do not know with precision how everything will unfold, but we do know and believe that everything is in God's loving and provident hands.

Our waiting is not merely waiting for something to happen. Our waiting is for God to act. Our waiting follows the Psalmist's advice: "Then wait for the Lord, keep to God's way." (Psalm 37:34)

The Anointing of the Sick is, of course, a sacrament of healing. It is also a sacrament of our great expectation that God directs our lives, especially when we seem to be most fragile and most in need.

SPRED: A SPECIAL PLACE FOR SPECIAL PEOPLE

My name is Tracy Mathison. I've been a part of a SPRED group for over 10 years now. The impact it has had on my life and my Friends with special needs that we serve is amazing and difficult to describe.

SPRED helps people of all ages throughout Chicago and the world build a relationship with God. It helps people who many push aside. I now realize that they have a place in this world and in God's plans. I've seen my SPRED Friends connect with the Holy Spirit in miraculous ways - who sometimes can barely utter a word. In SPRED they encounter a happier, more fulfilling life. SPRED provides a place of understanding, welcome and love. Parents and caregivers are touched deeply.

Many who volunteer are parents, including myself. I can't imagine a world where my son or daughter wouldn't be accepted, or maybe even shunned, because of a disability. SPRED offers these children and adults a community of faith and a place to grow in and awareness of and through the love we offer each other.

I know we're all busy. As a young parent, I feel that my life is the busiest of all. But, you are at this church, you belong to this parish, and maybe have children at this school. You are here for a reason bigger than yourself or your family. SPRED may be that reason. I don't know about you, but I want my son Charlie to see his mom spend her limited, but valuable, time doing something she believes in with her whole heart. My mom is an amazing woman and a volunteer who showed me from early on, that our time here isn't a free ride. It's a calling to work for the greater good – to be Church for all. Be that generous example to your own children. They will notice.

Will you help us uphold that greater good here at St. Josaphat Parish? We need you now. We have 6 Friends with special needs who do not yet have partners as we strive to begin the SPRED program at last this year. Other volunteers are anxious to meet you and tell you more. Watch for the date of our next planning meeting.

Contact Mary Jane Sullivan at the rectory; visit the SPRED website at www.spred-chicago.org and/or www.queenofangels.org; make an appointment to observe a session.

FROM THE CARDINAL

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ:

Today the Church throughout the world celebrates World Mission Sunday. As we gather at Mass to worship God, this is an occasion to especially remember in prayer those who have given their lives to missionary service in places far and near. World Mission Sunday also invites us to make concrete gestures of solidarity and support that will assist missionaries and the people to whom they minister, people who are often poor and sometimes persecuted for their faith in Christ. This Sunday is marked by the annual collection to help Pope Francis fund missions around the world.

At the center of a missionary's vocation is an eagerness to draw others to Christ, to introduce Him to those who do not yet know who He is, and to invite those who have forgotten Him to live as His disciples once again. Missionary and evangelizing activity consists of communicating the joy and hope of being loved and redeemed by Christ to everyone, everywhere, on every possible occasion. First by our Baptism, and then by our regular encounters with the Lord in the Sacraments of the Church, especially the Eucharist, we are called and enabled to be missionary disciples, followers of Christ who seek to do His will and to teach others who He is by our lives of faith, hope and Christian charity.

In his message for World Mission Sunday, Pope Francis reminds us that God loves a cheerful giver, and that this annual celebration is a moment to rekindle the desire and sense of obligation to take a joyful part in the missionary activity of the Church. The special collection that is taken up today in Catholic churches everywhere is distributed by the Pontifical Mission Societies, which support the Church's missionary endeavors. In 1,150 mission dioceses, these mission societies seek to evangelize, educate, heal and bring comfort to people in need. The monetary sacrifices we make today are loving signs of self-offering, first to the Lord and then to others. Through the work of the Pontifical Mission Societies and the missionaries who rely on them for funding, our material offerings truly become a means for the evangelization of all humanity, in places near and far.

I thank you for your participation in the missionary work of the Church, particularly by your support of the Pontifical Mission Societies. May God bless you and those you love, and awaken in us all the missionary spirit that shines so brightly and invitingly in the ministry of Pope Francis.

Sincerely yours in Christ,
Francis Cardinal George
